Deborah Timperley Glass

Since graduating over 25 years ago I've specialised in creating cast sculptures and bowls. I show internationally as well as prestigious UK exhibitions such as Collect 2015. The 'Rocky sculptures' explore the beauty of stone bridges, dry stone walling and rocky outcrops. The contrasting defined edges with the softness of adjacent vegetation. The blocks of colour echo the surrounding landscape, water and sky. They have a sense of place and atmosphere.

My cast glass sculpture series 'A Dialogue at the Threshold' draws the viewer in to my dense glass boxes by the allure of 23.5ct gold. Some are architectural, others are visually soft, appearing to be encased by fabric. There is a fluidity between the inside and the outside. The interplay between the interior and the exterior articulates a dialogue at the threshold.

The textured glass bowls are one of my favourite ways of working, another method I have developed and evolved. The surface is created using highly textured fabrics. All create a bowl form. Finally the edges are highly polished which highlights the colour and contrasts with the opacity of the textured glass.

I am in the Craft Council Directory and I belong to the Society of Designer Craftsmen, Design Nation, the Sussex Guild and Just Glass.

My workshop is in West Sussex and is in a converted stable, a wonderful place to make and create.

Derek Matthews: Crackingpots

Derek Matthews is a Selected Member of The Craft Pottery Association. Many of his ceramics start with a narrative that's either imagined, half remembered, carefully researched or commissioned.

Working on one piece at a time, every piece he creates is totally unique. "My output is low and slow" "I work with a variety of clays into which I often add other fragments of material. These "inclusions" plus the use of oxides and multiple firings add to the alchemy and often give the clay a distressed or patinated surface."

A love of whimsy, folk art, religious and tribal art and his background as an illustrator, all go into the mix.

Derek was once described as "Possibly one of the UK's most successful illustrators that no-one has ever heard of." For more than forty years, with agents in London, Tokyo and Toronto, he created work for a raft of top flight international and UK clients. The Snappy series of children's books he illustrated won several awards, sold more than 13 million copies worldwide and even managed an American number one best seller.

Selected Member of The Craft Potters Association

With each ceramic piece beginning as a story—imagined, remembered, researched, or commissioned— Derek brings a rich narrative depth to his work. His process is intentional and unhurried:
"My output is low and slow."

Working one piece at a time, Derek embraces imperfection, incorporating mixed clays, oxides, and inclusions through multiple firings to achieve beautifully distressed, patinated surfaces.

His work is a reflection of his love for folk, religious, tribal art— and a lifetime as a celebrated illustrator (even if you haven't heard his name, you've likely seen his work).

The award-winning Snappy children's book series he illustrated has sold over 13 million copies worldwide. Now, his ceramics offer the same whimsical storytelling—in clay.
